

FEAR OVER SCORE DIED IN FIRE AT A BOYS' SCHOOL

Many Leap From Blazing College of Sacred Heart at St. Hyacinthe

SOME OF BODIES ARE REMOVED

Thinly Clad Students Out Into Cold and Snow In Disaster

ST. HYACINTHE, Que., Jan. 18.—Eight persons were known to be dead, 22 were missing and 21 lay injured in a hospital today after a disastrous fire had razed the four-story college of the Sacred Heart, a school for boys.

Six bodies lay in the morgue of this town, 35 miles east of Montreal. A seventh, that of an elderly teacher, was at the hospital where he died. The eighth could be seen in the still glowing wreckage.

The directors of the college listed 22 as missing.

More than 100 boys and teaching brothers were in the school when the fire broke out before 2 a. m. Several of those injured or missing were from New England.

ST. HYACINTHE, Que., Jan. 18.—(Canadian Press)—Twenty-one persons were feared to have died early today in a fire that trapped more than 100 asleep in the college of the Sacred Heart here.

The only victim identified was Brother Jean Baptiste, 64, who leaped from one of the school's upper windows and died as he reached a hospital.

Police Chief A. Bourgeois said six bodies had been reported taken from the still-blazing building and "about 25, maybe 30" persons still were missing.

The editor of the local newspaper said about 26 persons perished inside the school besides the brother.

Five brothers and 6 students were in St. Charles hospital. Four of them were reported in a dangerous condition from injuries suffered in jumping from the four-story building or from exposure.

Most of the college's occupants had been quartered in big dormitories on the fourth floor.

Crumbling wreckage of the 37-year-old brick structure still was blazing nearly 10 hours after the fire was discovered.

Many Unaccounted For

A checkup was being made, but officials had been unable to account for many of the 80 boarding students and 31 teaching brothers who were trapped.

Some had scattered to homes

FEDERAL GRAND JURY IS ORGANIZED

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 18.—(P)—Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves suggested to a grand jury today that it search Kansas City police records to find who is responsible for "the men who violated the law" in the 1936 vote fraud cases.

In his lengthy instructions, Judge Reeves praised U. S. District Attorney Maurice Milligan, prosecutor of the vote fraud cases, as "able and courageous" and also lauded Gov. Lloyd C. Stark for "struggling to bring to the people of Missouri an honest ballot."

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 18.—(P)—A federal grand jury, duties of which will include renewal of the investigation into Kansas City's 1936 election vote frauds was completed today after two previous false starts.

Confusion over removal of federal offices here to a new building necessitated a search for missing jurors.

Rex Allaman, Forsyth, Mo., was named foreman of the grand jury. Its members included: W. O. Stanley, Sedalia, John F. Wilcox and Erba D. Smith, St. Joseph.

Judge Albert L. Reeves told the jury that the people were looking to it to restore their voting rights and "I don't believe the grand jury will let the people down in Kansas City."

The jury probably will not get into the vote fraud investigation until the latter part of the week.

CONDITION OF W. T. KEMPER BECOMES CRITICAL

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 18.—(P)—W. T. Kemper, 71, Missouri's social security commission chairman and prominent financier and political leader, was reported in a dangerous condition today at a hospital here. He underwent an operation Dec. 24.

HOUSE TO DEBATE NAVY EXPANSION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(P)—The house, preparing to start debate on the $563,266,494 naval appropriations bill, studied testimony today that Japan has more fully-manned fighting ships in commission than either the United States, or the British empire.

Navy department data filed with the appropriations committee showed Japan on Nov. 1 had 213 warcraft ready for action, compared with 199 of the United States and Britain's 195.

Further, 150 of Japan's ships were under age, by the yardstick of the 1936 treaty, contrasted with 166 modern American craft and 162 modern British vessels.

The Washington and 1930 London treaties were aimed at maintaining a ratio between the United States, British and Japanese fleets of approximately 5-5-3. But their expiration removed this limitation.

CONCERT TONIGHT BY SYMPHONY BE EXCELLENT ONE

Director Rosenthal Highly Pleased; Singer Be Guest Artist

Abe Rosenthal, director of the Sedalia Symphony orchestra, expressed himself as highly pleased with the prospects for an excellent concert tonight, after Sunday afternoon's final rehearsal. Mrs. Gladys Havens, Kansas City contralto soloist, who is to be this evening's guest artist, was present.

With characteristic modesty, Mr. Rosenthal had nothing to say about his own part in the perfecting of his organization and in the selection of a program of unusual variety and popular appeal. He waxed eloquent, however, over Mrs. Havens' voice, which he described as "outstanding," "marvelous," "a rich contralto of the widest range," and other similar superlatives.

"It was a genuine joy to everyone in the orchestra Sunday to have the privilege of playing for her, not only because of her great ability but also by reason of her glowing personality," said Mr. Rosenthal. "Anyone who fails to be in the audience Tuesday night will be missing a rare opportunity to hear so fine a singer."

DINNER LINCOLN DAY TO ST. LOUIS

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 18.—State Senator Ray Mabey, president of the Association of Young Republicans of Missouri, announced here today the organization would hold its annual Lincoln day dinner and election in St. Louis February 12 instead of at Sedalia, as previously announced.

The change in plans was made, Mabey said, "in view of the unusual amount of interest in evidence this election year."

Miss Marion E. Martin, assistant to John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, will address the Republican Federated Women's club, which will meet in conjunction with the young Republicans organization.

W. D. Smith, chairman of the Pettis County Republican committee, today said there was no friction over the change, it being made because the principal speaker at the meeting indicated he would rather speak in St. Louis than to come to Sedalia.

It was said a speaker is coming from the east and the trip on to Sedalia would be too hard on him.

CHARGES OF POSSESSION OF PUNCHBOARDS DROPPED

Charges of possession of punch board, pending against Fay Bennett and Ross McClain, and of operating a vending machine, pending against Lloyd Kennon, set for trial this week, have been dismissed by the prosecuting attorney.

An appeal was granted to the Kansas City Court of Appeals in the case of B. H. Wenner, who was found guilty of setting up a gambling device and fined $50.

LABOR FEDERATION WILL MEET TONIGHT

The Sedalia Federation of Labor will meet tonight at 7:30 p. m. at Labor Hall. A good attendance is expected.

Postpone B. and P. W. C. Meeting

The meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club, set for Thursday night, January 20, has been postponed one week, and will be January 27, at Kueck's Tavern.

KIDNAP-SLAYER OF C. S. ROSS IS TAKEN BY G-MEN

Confesses and Admits He Killed Partner In Chicago Abduction

ARREST MADE AT SANTA ANITA TRACK

Recover $14,402 of $50,000 Paid Peter Anders as Ransom

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18.—Relentless department of justice agents, at the end of a four-month manhunt, marked the kidnap-slaying of Charles S. Ross of Chicago, "solved" today as they secretly whisked a man they said was the confessed killer back to Chicago to stand trial.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the federal bureau of investigation, announced Peter Anders, 30, former logger, admitted he slew Ross two days after $50,000 ransom was paid near Rockford, Ill., October 8, 1937, and then shot and killed his confederate, James Atwood Gray.

Anders was traced across the country by a trail of ransom bills he spent lavishly at race tracks, Hoover said, and last Friday was taken into custody here at Santa Anita Park.

Agents recovered $14,402.28 of the ransom on Anders and at his hotel, Hoover said.

A 27-page statement was made by the prisoner, but not released to the press, before he was started eastward last night, either by airplane or train.

The bodies of Ross and Gray have not been recovered, Hoover said, adding:

"We are certain the bodies are not in the state of Illinois, where the actual murders took place. This fact gave the federal government jurisdiction in the case."

"Anders shot the two men through the head, but all we can say for certain is that the killings took place on the outskirts of Rockford, about 100 miles west of Chicago, and that the bodies apparently were hidden somewhere over the Wisconsin line."

A woman, it was learned, motored here with Anders from New Orleans last week, but investigators absolved her of connection with the Ross abduction. They shielded her identity.

Capture Dure Lure of Ponies.

It was Anders' irrefragable urge to "play the ponies" that led to his capture. He was passing some of the ransom money through the pari-mutuel windows at Santa Anita, Hoover said, when he was seized.

Previously, he had been trailed to Spokane and Seattle, Wash., Portland, Ore., Chicago, New York City, Philadelphia, Washington, D. C., Miami, Fla., and New Orleans, with federal operatives "close behind him on every move," Hoover related.

A trap similar to that set in the Lindbergh case was baited across the country as the government sent a complete list of serial numbers of 5,250 bills given the abductors to police, newspapers, banks and business houses from coast to coast.

Officials of Santa Anita and banks here were credited by Hoover with final help in springing the trap.

Anders was said to have at least three aliases: Albert March, Marshall Eaton and Ray Crantz. Hoover said he also confessed to participating in the robbery of about 20 banks.

About 30 years old, five feet eight inches in height, the slender-

CHAUTEAUX FORMS A NEW CABINET

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Jan. 18.—(P)—Radical-Socialist Camille Chateaux announced tonight he had formed a new government, ending France's five-day cabinet crisis.

PARIS, Jan. 18.—Radical-Socialist Camille Chateaux, backed by tentative Socialist support, started building a government today to end a five-day cabinet crisis.

Socialist Marx Dormoy, minister of interior in Chateaux' resigned cabinet, notified the premier-designate that the Socialist council had refused to participate in a cabinet unless Communists also were admitted, but offered its vote in the chamber of deputies under a people's front accord.

Chateaux announced he would continue cabinet consultations and receive Cesar Campinchi, minister of marine and a radical Socialist, in his Matignon palace headquarters.

STRIKES AT A GLANCE

ORIZABA, Veracruz State, Mexico.—A 24-hour general strike which caused at least eight deaths in interunion rioting, ended.

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico.—President Roosevelt asked to intervene in settling Puerto Rico's prolonged dock strike; acting governor said no basis yet for federal action.

WASHINGTON.—Senate supporters of National Labor Relations Board criticized proposals to cut its funds and investigate its activities.

Almost simultaneously, senate judiciary committee was setting up a subcommittee to consider a resolution by Senator Burke (D. Neb.) for an inquiry into the board's operations.

PITTSBURGH.—Five hundred men remained idle while a U. S. Department of Labor mediator pushed efforts to settle two-day-old strike of produce handlers.

ENTHUSIASTS ON WILD LIFE MEET AT THE CAPITOL

Governor Stark Lauds I. T. Bode; "Ding" Darling Gives Address

By The Associated Press

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 18.—(P)—J. N. (Ding) Darling of Des Moines, Ia., president of the General Wild Life Federation of America, told the Missouri Conservation Federation today that only formation of a militant group of conservationists would enable the nation to preserve its "great heritage of wildlife resources."

"That we have destroyed much that nature gave us is apparent to anyone who will give it a casual glance," he asserted.

Darling, former head of the U. S. Biological Survey and nationally famous as a cartoonist, paid high tribute to Governor Lloyd C. Stark and his fight for the new state conservation program: "There are not 10 other states which have such a governor who is so willing to go to bat for our birds and beasts."

INJURIES TO MRS. PERRY ARE FATAL

Mrs. Leslie Perry, aged 51, who was injured in a motor car accident Monday morning three miles south of Marshall, when an automobile in which she was riding with her husband was in a collision with one driven by Allan Karf, of Sedalia, died at the Putnam hospital, Marshall, at 6 o'clock Monday evening.

Mrs. Perry and her husband formerly operated a store about seven miles south of Marshall until fourteen months ago when they moved to Glendale, Ariz. Four months ago they returned to look after some business interests and Tuesday morning had just left Marshall, en route back to Arizona, when the accident occurred.

Mrs. Perry was taken to the Putnam hospital where at mid-afternoon her injuries were believed not to be serious. Later it developed she had internal injuries, which caused her death. Mr. Perry received only minor scratches.

Mr. Karf, rendered unconscious in the crash, was taken to the Fitzgibbons hospital, and later brought to his room at Hotel Bothwell here. He is still confined to his bed, under the care of a physician, suffering from an injury to his head and one hand.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Perry is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Nellie M. Hill and Mrs. Annie Spainard, both of California, Mo., and Mrs. James Mason, Elm, Wyo., and a brother, Walter Gamble, of California, Mo.

At Marshall today it was said there would probably be no inquest. Funeral arrangements had not been made, pending word from relatives.

The program opened with group singing of Rotary and popular songs. Mrs. Nellie Monegan, official pianist for the club, accompanied the singers. Mrs. A. R. Beach, accompanied by Mrs. Monegan, gave a vocal solo.

Following the solo the recently elected Rotarians were introduced. They are Frank DeMott, John J. McMullan, N. U. Renshaw, Frank Bieser and W. D.

HOUSE PASSES ONE OF BIG BILLS FOR APPROPRIATIONS

Would Allot $1,515,352.286 In Treasury-Post-office Measure

RAYBURN PLEADS TO CUT EXPENSES

Says Some Day Balance Will Be Required on Budget

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The house passed and sent to the senate today a $1,515,352.286 treasury-postoffice appropriation bill for the next fiscal year.

The total of the measure as finally passed represented a net reduction of $200,000 below the figure recommended by the house appropriations committee.

Included in the bill were increases in various items amounting to $2,300,000 which were more than offset by elimination of a $2,500,000 item for construction of government printing office annexes.

The standing vote on final passage was 281 to 4.

The four were Republicans—Taber and Lord of New York, Knutson of Minnesota and Rich of Pennsylvania.

As finally approved, the bill carried $61,062,722 less than the current fiscal year's appropriation and $8,116,050 less than the budget recommended.

For Spending Slash.

During final consideration of the appropriations Majority Leader Rayburn, attempting to cut down spending, pleaded with the house today to help balance the government's budget.

During debate on an amendment to the 1938 postoffice appropriation bill which would provide a 10 per cent increase in the $11,250,000 item for rent, light and fuel, Rayburn said:

"I am, from now on, when these appropriation bills come up, going to take every opportunity to call the attention of the house to the condition of government finances."

"Some of these days, whether we want to or not, we're going to have to do what any sane individual would do—balance out with income. The amount here is sufficient."

"I want to plead with this house and especially those on this side of the aisle (Democrats) that when the budget continues to be unbalanced, the responsibility is going to be on the majority party—where it belongs."

Yesterday the house tentatively accepted increases of $2,326,000 in the appropriation bill. The raises would be used mostly to augment the present number of mail carriers.

The amendment to increase the rent, light and fuel item was shouted down.

On the other side of the Capitol, Senator Smith (D-SC) reported agreement by a senate-house conference committee on provisions for the cotton program under the ever-normal granary bill.

Smith said the group had agreed on a program calling for 1,600,000 bale production this year with a penalty of 2 cents a pound of $10 a bale on production in excess of quotas.

Filibuster To Continue.

Sen. Ellender (D-La.) resumed his speechmaking shortly after noon and Senator Barkley of Kentucky, the Democratic leader, indicated the southerners would be permitted to continue their filibuster against the anti-lynching bill through this week without having to attend night sessions.

Four senators undertook to revive the war referendum proposal, which the house recently shelved after President Roosevelt denounced it.

Senator Nye (R-ND) said he and three colleagues who have introduced slightly different constitutional amendments would agree on one measure and try to obtain a senate vote at this session.

Nye said the new proposal would differ from the house resolution by Rep. Ludlow (D-Ind) in that it would make a popular vote on declaring war unnecessary if a foreign nation invaded any part of the western hemisphere.

The Ludlow resolution would have required a referendum unless the United States was invaded.

Associated with Nye in the new campaign were senators Capper (R-Kans.), La Follette (Prog-Wis.), and Clark (D-Mo.).

FAVORS COUNCIL FOR ATTACK ON PROBLEMS FACED

Proposal From Senator Bulkley of Ohio on Economic Affairs

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Senator Bulkley (D-Ohio) proposed today that the nation's "most intelligent and forward-looking elements" pool their experience in a national council on economic problems.

Bulkley said the senate manufacturers committee, which he heads, and about 100 private citizens have been studying the idea for months.

"Whatever our decision may be as to temporary, immediate remedies for the present recession," he said, "this more long term, permanent approach which we have been working on should be differentiated from plans or proposals which so prolifically spring up under the spur of immediate pressure."

He said the formal call for organizing the council would go out in the near future.

The council would draw its members from business, labor, agriculture, physical and social sciences, and such professional groups as lawyers, engineers, historians and economists. Their advice would be available to congress and the President at all times.

Bulkley said most of the co-operative efforts suggested so far had been restricted to government, business and labor.

"We believe that such a national council must be appointed in an essentially non-political, non-partisan," Bulkley added.

"Business alone can not do the job that lies ahead and it would be placing on its shoulders an unnecessarily and probably fatally heavy load if it were to attempt it."

Continues Conferences.

President Roosevelt meanwhile continued his business conferences, arranging to talk over auto financing Friday with both manufacturers and auto finance men.

This meeting will follow a conference tomorrow with the commerce department's business advisory council, which includes some of the most prominent figures in business and industry.

Mr. Roosevelt at a recent press conference, in talking about how business and government might cooperate more, gave reporters the impression he wanted to eliminate "high pressure" auto selling and to keep production more regular, possibly by tightening credit terms.

Figures from the automobile manufacturers association showed that in 1934, only 37 per cent of new auto installment buying called for payments over a period of more than a year. In 1935, the percentage increased to 62, and in 1936 to 71.8.

In automobile circles here, however, it was said the finance companies had "tightened up" somewhat last year.

From the National Association of Manufacturers, whose membership includes all types of industrialists, came an offer to co-operate with the administration in business recovery efforts.

President William B. Warner sent Mr. Roosevelt a pledge of "sincere and best efforts" and reported that the Association's new committee on national policy coordination and cooperation was ready to help.

The committee is headed by Charles R. Hook, president of the American Rolling Mills Company, Middletown, Ohio. Seventeen manufacturers have accepted appointment.

Chairman Byrnes (D-SC) of the senate unemployment committee proposed, as another move to lighten the consequences of business recessions, that the social security act be amended to permit states to advance the time of beginning payment of unemployment compensation.

LIFE IS CHEAP IN DOMINGO

At least 10,000 citizens of Haiti have been killed "in cold blood" since October 1 in "the most horrible unprovoked massacre of modern times," says Quentin Reynolds, associate editor of Collier's Weekly, who is said to have been the first American reporter to visit the scene of the slaughter.

Mr. Reynolds interviewed both President Vincent of Haiti, and President Trujillo of the neighboring republic, who has been accused of ordering the mass killings of defenseless men, women and children. He also talked with many survivors and examined the wounds of scores of the injured in hospitals.

Two hundred thousand Haitians live in the Dominican republic, having moved across the border to work in sugar fields and "it is members of this group who are being slaughtered in an effort to force them to return to their own country."

Three hundred Haitians were slain on the night of October 1 and the following night, Mr. Reynolds says, Trujillo attended a meeting at Dajabon where he is reported to have incited the people to further killings. He quotes Bishop Jean-Marie Jan, of Haiti:

"President Trujillo made a speech that night. The president said in his speech, 'I came to the border country to see what I could do for Dominicans living here. I found that our people would be happier if we got rid of the Haitians.' Then the president paused, stamped his foot and said emphatically, 'I will fix that. Yesterday 300 Haitians were killed at Banico. That must continue.'"

Mr. Reynolds says Trujillo told him that "the whole affair has been overemphasized," and that "while it is a regrettable incident, it is certainly no cause for international action." Mr. Reynolds says that "I might have believed him if I hadn't looked into the tortured eyes of mothers who had seen their whole families wiped out. I might have believed him if I had not reached out and touched eight-inch machete scars on the head of a nine-year-old boy. I might have believed him if I had not listened to the stories told by hundreds of miserable people and read the stories told by thousands more."

FERN GATHERING INDUSTRY

From the New York Sun.

You may, at some time, have given a thought to those delicate ferns that accentuate the beauty of the flowers on the dining table. The flowers, you will hear someone say, are beautiful. No one remarks on the ferns. The life is in the blossoms. The ferns are commonplace, almost like wrapping paper or the ribbon that may encircle them. And the ferns are not always appreciated. In some homes, they are separated from the flowers and thrown away. And yet they are the oldest things in creation. They were a part of the earth before roses were ever heard of.

Fern gathering is an industry of itself. Not even all florists can tell about them, where they come from, how they are gathered and retain their freshness. Some of them do, and this is approximately what they will tell. It is a story of an organized business, of superintendents, managers, pickers, packers, buyers, bookkeepers, truckmen and numerous other functionaries.

The Bowie collection of small firearms on exhibit at Ft. McHenry National park, Baltimore, Md., is rated as the finest small firearms collection extant.

WHAT TRADE CONSISTS OF

From New York Times.

All of us know what little girls are made of, but only the specialists can tell us the sugar and spice and all things nice that international trade is made of. Some of these have been drawn to the attention of the state department in connection with the forthcoming negotiations for a trade agreement with Great Britain. It appears that we would like to sell some of the following articles to our insular brethren: Ukuleles, thin Bible paper, nail polish, artificial teeth, rose plants, alligator leather and hurricane lanterns. We would like to buy from them—at least some of us would—such things as nursing nipples, tape for Venetian blinds, real buffalo-horn buttons, ale and stout, and shuttlecock (or "birdies") for use in the game of badminton. When these items are balanced, one against the other, we get a composite picture of the happy Britisher gritting his artificial teeth, taking one last smell of his roses, reading an appropriate text in his Bible, hanging out his hurricane lamp, and sitting down to run his well-manicured fingers over the strings of his imported ukulele. Our own situation is a little different, but perhaps the British foreign office will like to think of us—and if it likes to it can—as getting a good workout at badminton and then drinking ale and or stout until our genuine buffalo-horn buttons fairly pop off our vests.

When we get down to particulars like these we see at once that international trade need not be the grim thing it is often pictured. Such phrases as "the struggle for raw materials" and "the competition for foreign markets" represent only a fragment of the truth. Much good-will may be engendered by swapping a case of stout for a set of false teeth, a pair of alligator slippers for a quantity of tape for Venetian blinds.

LIFE INSURANCE PEAK

The total life insurance in force in the United States is a dependable barometer of economic conditions, on a long-range basis, according to the Dallas Morning News. This figure, which reached a peak of $103,000,000,000 in 1929, dropped to $98,000,000,000 in 1933, but at the close of 1937 it had attained a new high of $110,000,000,000. "Payments from insurance companies which totaled about $2,400,000,000 in 1937 constitute a factor in the national income too large to be overlooked."

Americans, who held 70 per cent of the world's life insurance in 1929, have been more "insurance-minded" than people of other countries, "but life insurance has made remarkable foreign gains in the last few years, especially in Japan. This form of provision for the future has proved as nearly depression-proof as any other kind of saving that is available."

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18 — Neither politics nor administration policies were mentioned during the president's conference with the five big business tycoons he invited to the white house.

The president's remarks centered about the necessity for a planned production in order to keep plants working at a steady level throughout the year. He held that industry itself could effect such stabilization by foresight and collaboration.

The manner in which the discussions were inspired had a lot to do with their turning out to be so cordial. George MacGregor Harrison, the labor leader who conceived the idea and sold it both to Roosevelt and the industrialists, did not even ask to be invited to the white house meeting.

The 42-year-old head of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, who is a member of the A. F. of L. executive council and chairman of its committee negotiating peace with the C. I. O. told the president not to bother about him.

"My only interest is to help solve this recession problem," Harrison said. "If that can be done it will mean employment for workers and this is what I am after."

At the meeting Roosevelt first turned to Alfred P. Sloan, chairman of General Motors, and pointed out that in the first half of 1937 the automobile industry operated at a high rate of production, then was forced to let out tens of thousands of workers when the market became glutted. Addressing M. W. Clement, head of the Pennsylvania railroad, Roosevelt cited similarly that the railroads had dumped orders for a year's supply of rails on the steel companies with demands that they be filled in three months.

"If those orders had been spread out," he said, "and the automobile manufacturers had done the same with their production, it is safe to say that both industries today would be operating with full payrolls."

The president emphasized that he was as anxious as his callers to reduce government expenditures and balance the budget. But neither was possible, he contended, without the cooperation of industry. If industry could not manage its affairs to keep men at work, then the government had to take care of them.

"People will not starve," he said. "If they can't get employment in private industry then the government has to find it for them. When your companies lay off a hundred or two hundred thousand workers, they throw the burden of taking care of these people on the government. It is perfectly obvious, gentlemen, that if industry does not do the job, then the government has to step in. You can't complain about that."

Modified NRA
The president proposed no concrete plan to solve the industrial problem and the business leaders made no suggestions.

Roosevelt did mention briefly the desirability of setting up a central statistical agency to supply industry with information enabling it to plan its operations.

He has been turning this idea over in his mind for some time and has discussed it with other business leaders.

Donald Richberg, former NRA boss who sat in on the conference, has been trying to sell him on a new NRA for more than a year, but Roosevelt has been cold to the idea. Instead he has been trying to work out a plan that would make it possible for industry to plan production under government supervision without an elaborate bureaucracy of codes and administrators.

Senator's Son
Senator John E. Miller of Arkansas, who occupies the seat of the late Joe Robinson, has had problems to settle since he came to the senate, but none so great as the issue confronting his young son when he entered a private school in Washington.

John E. Miller, Jr., was obliged to become arbiter of an eighth grade debate on how to pronounce the word "Arkansas." Some said it was AR-kan-saw, some said it was AR-KAN-sas.

John ruled firmly in favor of the latter pronunciation.

Note—John has become the envy of young Washingtonians because at age 14, he has a license to drive his own car.

Justice Sutherland
Justice Sutherland, who now steps down from the supreme court, will be known to future generations not so much for his opinions as for the fact that during a period of vigorous, sometimes vitriolic court dissent, he remained courteous, kindly and even-tempered.

Kindness is written in the justice's face. It is not a strong face, but kindly. His beard is thin and gray-white, without the virile fullness of Chief Justice Hughes'. His skin is remarkably delicate, as is everything about him, even the fine-spun watch chain and the hand-stitching in his black worsted suit.

His handshake is firm; his step not so firm. His eyes are gray and colorless, like his personality, yet they are bright. Of recent months, they have troubled him, and he finds that his ribbonless pince-nez are not sufficient to keep up with the heavy reading required of a supreme court justice.

The justice looks as if he never smiled, but those from Utah who know him best rate him next to Tom Hefflin as the best story teller in Washington. His specialty is Scotch dialect.

Senator King of Utah was a strong political opponent of Sutherland. Defeated by Sutherland for a seat in the house, he turned around and beat the justice for a seat in the senate. Despite his political rivalry, Senator King pays rare tribute to the retiring justice.

"I would trust him with untold gold," says King, "as with the most precious secrets of the mind. He is courteous, charitable, forgiving, unpretentious—wholly a noble soul."

FOLK NOT "SAFE" IN THE HOME

The Red Cross lists a number of "don'ts" for householders: Don't leave toys on the staircase. Don't open cans with a knife. Don't turn on the light from the bathtub. Don't leave your medicine chest open. Don't smoke in bed. Don't use a rocking chair for a ladder.

There are several others that apply more to summer than to winter. These emphasize that "safe at home" is just a phrase. The home is almost as dangerous as the automobile.

I list them by request, but I am not sanguine that the warnings do much good. Even when people have had a warning. There are plenty of people who will smoke in bed tonight immediately after reading this article. And there are even people on record who have set fire to the bed, and then two weeks later set fire to the sofa downstairs, and a month later set fire to the pillows on a chair, and then set fire to the bed again. Somebody once remarked, "The bed is not green even if you are."

Tell Story on Self
I can tell one story on myself about not leaving the toys on the steps. There is a codicil to that which is "Always turn on the light when you intend to go down the cellar steps." Well, I open the presses to add that last night, right after I wrote that good advice I took a load of books in my arms, piled so high that I couldn't see over them, started down the cellar steps in the dark, stepped on a piece of fire wood, and nearly became your "late correspondent."

So, if you really intend to get any good out of this health advice, do as I say and not as I do. About the medicine closet being open. The idea is that young children climb up on a stool and take out the contents of the medicine chest, and swallow some poisonous mixture. The real way to be safe on this is to say to yourself, "Don't have any poisonous mixtures or medicines in your medicine closet." What do you want them for? Especially don't have any cathartic pills containing strychnine—the aloin, strychnine, belladonna pills—because more children die of strychnine poisoning from swallowing such pills than all other forms of poison put together.

The "Don't turn on the light" story. I have heard of a young child climb up on a stool and take out the contents of the medicine chest, and swallow some poisonous mixture. The real way to be safe on this is to say to yourself, "Don't have any poisonous mixtures or medicines in your medicine closet." What do you want them for? Especially don't have any cathartic pills containing strychnine—the aloin, strychnine, belladonna pills—because more children die of strychnine poisoning from swallowing such pills than all other forms of poison put together.

Fair Enough
Smith called on his minister. "Is it right for any person to profit by the mistakes of other people?" he asked. "Most certainly not," replied the cleric.

Smith brightened as he answered, "Very well, then, perhaps you'd like to return the $10 I paid you for marrying me."

CHAPTER X
SEVERAL weeks had passed, the snow had long since melted, the men were back once more at work on Bret's bridge, and Connie was now an integral part of her surroundings.

Each morning Bret called for her to drive the three miles to the camp; each evening drove her back. Connie loved the excitement and bustle, the mule teams with their burly drivers, the husky mountaineers with their sturdy muscles and soft drawing talk, the whistle of the freight train, unloading steel and materials, the log-cabin office with its old-fashioned wood stove, Pop Walters with his shining gray hair and invariable package of snuff. Most of all she loved the sense of being a part of the job, the feeling that she, too, was helping to "build things," to create. She could understand Bret's enthusiasm, why he felt that this was his work.

She marveled now at that girl who had laid in the big Marie Antoinette bed, missing all the fresh loveliness of early morning, not caring enough about anything to want to get up, bored with life, sick of the endless round of social activity. That girl, this new Katie Blyn felt, had been a "softie"; she had never really lived at all. There had been so little justification for her existence.

CONNIE was not sure just when she had fallen in love with Bret Hardesty. It might have been that first moment when he had handed her her glasses and she had looked into his dark eyes. Or perhaps it had happened when he had tackled the bandit in the bus, and she had been afraid for him. Again this miracle may have taken place during that long night, driving over the mountains, sharing its beauty and silence.

It did not matter. All she knew was that he was the man she loved. The only one she ever had loved. The only one she would ever love.

She was glad that she had met him while she was Katie Blyn. Bret would never have looked at her, let alone offered to help her, brought her into his own country, given her work, accepted her as a companion and friend, had she Where's That Grudge?

I had a grudge. It was a very fine one, all shined up and ready for use any time I cared to use it. I had been "mad" at a fellow. He had done me a wrong. Angered me. Made me swear I'd get even with him. Someday, somehow, I'd get back at him. And Revenge would be sweet.

That grudge was a sort of savings account into which I poured bitterness and sour thoughts and vinegarish dislike to the full.

I kept that grudge for years, expecting it to come in handy some day. It stood right on the mantel-piece over the fireplace, next to the clock, where I could see it whenever I came into the room.

At first I was proud of it, showed it to people. But after a while, it sort of got in the way. It gathered dust and was something of a nuisance, cramped my living, caused me trouble.

There was some talk of throwing the grudge away as a quaint old knick-knack that didn't belong in the house and that wasn't any use, anyway. But I hung onto it because I was used to it.

At the last minute I couldn't let it go. Why, what would I do without my grudge? So I kept it.

It shifted about the house and survived several movings, though three moves are supposed to be equal to one fire. It got onto the top shelf of a closet, moved to the back porch, gathered dust in the basement, climbed to the attic, existed without visible means of support. My grudge became like one of the family.

And whenever I saw or heard of that fellow I had a grudge against, for years, I could hear a faint movement within me, as if a rattlesnake were scraping across a rock, or a weasel was sneaking in the underbrush.

But at last, after more years, I stumbled over that grudge in the attic and bruised my shins and I picked it up and said:

"What on earth is this old thing? Why have I been keeping this so long? It's old and discolored and cracked and useless—and where is the fellow I've been keeping it for? What was his name? Why did I get mad at him?"

And I couldn't remember . . . Old enemies drift out of the mind and the bitterness they caused mean no more than a neighborhood quarrel in Sodom or in Tyre. So it was with my old grudge and I put it away in the garbage can—and it's gone forever. And I didn't even say goodbye.

THE BLUE BELLS OF SCOTLAND

Oh where! and oh where! is your Highland laddie gone?
He's gone to fight the French for King George upon the throne;
And it's oh! in my heart, how I wish him safe at home.

Oh where! and oh where! does your Highland laddie dwell?
He dwells in merry Scotland at the sign of the Blue Bell;
And it's oh! in my heart that I love my laddie well.

What clothes, in what clothes is your Highland laddie clad?
His bonnet's of the Saxon green, his waistcoat's of the plaid;
And it's oh! in my heart that I love my Highland lad.

Suppose, oh suppose, that your Highland lad should die?
The bagpipes shall play over him, I'll lay me down and cry;
And it's oh! in my heart that I wish he may not die!

JUSTICE GEORGE SUTHERLAND OFF BENCH SMILING

Exchanges Good Wishes With Nominee Stanley Reed and Others

By EDDIE GILMORE
WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Justice George Sutherland went off the supreme court bench into retirement with a smile for the man whom President Roosevelt picked for his place—Solicitor General Stanley Reed.

It was a quiet and almost unnoticed greeting. The tall, bald solicitor general arrived in the crowded court room 10 minutes before noon yesterday and took his seat, as usual in front of the bench.

Dozens of lawyers pressed his hand in congratulation. One of the first was Senator Minton (D., Ind.), who had received considerable mention as a possible nominee.

Promptly at noon, the black-robed justices filed in and sat down.

Justice Sutherland turned his eyes toward the solicitor general. Reed already was looking at the justice.

Sutherland smiled and nodded, and the nominee beamed as he returned the greeting. Justice Black began reading an opinion, and the session proceeded without formal recognition of Sutherland's retirement.

Exchanges Good Wishes
During the afternoon the 75-year-old justice went to his chambers to exchange good wishes with Reed and other government lawyers. Friends said Sutherland expects to reside here and may serve occasionally on the District of Columbia court of appeals.

If the senate confirms Reed's nomination—and there was every indication it would—there will be many changes in the court's routine.

A new member, whoever he is, creates the same sort of family flurry as an extra guest at the dinner table—everybody except papa has to move over.

Until Justice Black took his seat, the jurists had been sitting down in the same order for five years—the chief justice in the middle and the others to his right and left by seniority.

Black's admission meant that everyone had to move over except Hughes. When the senate confirms another justice everybody except the chief justice will have to move again.

Then there's the question of lunches.

On court days the justices gather around a big table in a rear room of the resplendent $10,000,000 building. Seats there will have to be rearranged.

The court carpenters must build someone a new leather-upholstered chair, and then uproot and re-anchor Justice Brandeis' desk lamp. He won't have one of those furnished by the government.

BIRDS NEED FRESH AIR; NOT DRAFTS

Exposure Often Results in Outbreaks of Colds.

By T. T. Brown, Extension Poultry Specialist, North Carolina State College, WNU Service.

Drafts are a source of danger to poultry. The birds need ample air circulation in their houses, but they should not be exposed to direct drafts and dampness, as this frequently results in outbreaks of colds or bronchitis, and sometimes sorehead or pox, if the birds have not been vaccinated.

Birds should not be crowded in the laying house. There should be at least four square feet of floor space for each bird.

Overcrowded birds develop a higher percentage of culls, lay fewer and smaller eggs, and are more susceptible to disease.

Feed a high quality laying mash—you get more for your money when you buy a good mash. Check a few pullets occasionally for body weight and regulate the grain feed accordingly.

Keep pullets separated from older hens, as pullets need more grain to build up body weight, and cannot be fed properly when mixed with the older and bigger hens.

Birds that molt late and keep up a good egg production should be marked with colored legbands so they can be selected for breeding purposes.

If you do not plan to buy good chicks from a reliable hatchery, you should arrange to breed only your best birds, as that is the only way you can build up a good, profitable flock.

Tragic and Thrilling Story of War Told by Missionary

A tragic and thrilling story of the horrors of war was described first hand by a Methodist missionary worker Monday night as he recalled that just a few months ago he traveled hundreds of miles dodging in and out of trenches and dug-outs at the alarm of a Japanese air raid.

C. J. Johanneber, a principal speaker at the three-day sub-district meeting of the Epworth League, recalled vividly at the home of his host, Rev. C. J. Spreckelmeyer, the scenes in and near Kinkiang, a city in the central part of China, where Japanese planes played havoc with the non-combatants in the villages and the many soldiers, some able to walk, some carried on the shoulders of fellows peasants, to the mission hospital where but few doctors on hand worked day and night in the operating room.

"During those hectic days our schools routine went on as best we could manage while coolies worked day and night building tunnels and trenches—a refuge from what all feared the most—bombs from the air.

"Sometimes the large Christian bell over Kinkiang would peal out the warning at two in the morning—a signal to put out all lights and rush to the trenches.

Maybe the planes would come and maybe they would not arrive at all but it meant hours in the tunnels until the bell rang again that all was clear for the present.

"I do not believe there was ever an air bombardment that the people in Chinese cities and villages were not given ample notice. The Chinese used telephones, wireless, and even sound equipment, which could pick up the sound of the charging attack ships.

"As my furlough was due in ten months I was ordered to take my family back to America. It was on this trip through the interior away from war fronts that I encountered thousands and thousands of Chinese soldiers moving in steady streams to strategic points.

"These soldiers were targets for Japanese bombers and on one part of our trip the train on which we were riding stopped, backed under a group of trees and all passengers scattered a few minutes before Japanese planes filled the air.

"In Canton we reached a city of turmoil, crazy Chinese — crazy with confusion and fear. That night before we could get a bite to eat the raid warning came and hundreds of Chinese swarmed into the hotel; lights went out—all awaited the thundering bombs which soon shook the city.

"A consul from America to whom I talked during the raid said he had just come from another war-torn country, Spain. Smiling he said the Chinese took an air-raid much more calmly than did the Spanish people."

When asked what the out-come would be Mr. Johanneber said "who can tell?"

"It is on a balance. Will Chinese supplies hold out long enough? Or will Japan's financial structure fall? China is planning a long war. Japan wishes to end it as soon as possible. I see now that Russian fliers are taking part. Only time can tell."

Mrs. Montgomery Tells Story Of Food Canning

"The story of canning goes back to 1795, when the French government made an effort to improve the food supply of its army and navy by offering a prize for the discovery of some method of preserving food from one harvest to another," Mrs. Claire L. Montgomery, county home demonstration agent told members of Sorosis, whom she addressed at a meeting at the Heard Memorial club house Monday afternoon. Mrs. Montgomery was introduced by Mrs. Harry W. Welch, program chairman for the day. Mrs. D. P. Dyer, club president, presided over the business session.

"Among those who sought this prize," continued Mrs. Montgomery, was Nicholas Appert, a Parisian confectioner, who worked on the problem for years and finally after 14 years of effort, succeeded in preserving certain foods by sealing them in especially made glass bottles which were kept in boiling water for various lengths of time. His methods were made public in a treatise which he published in 1810, and this treatise was the starting point from which the present day canning industry has developed. Appert was awarded the 12,000 francs offered by the French government, and it is an interesting fact that the food-preserving firm he founded is still in business today in France.

"The cumbersome glass bottles," said the speaker, "which were at first used were expensive to make and difficult to seal. The answer to suitable containers was found in an adaptation of the canisters that had been used for packing tea—the tin can; and in the improved type of glass jars. Actually, what we call a tin can isn't a tin can at all. It is a steel can, coated inside and out with tin."

Mrs. Montgomery went into detail to explain the problems of research in canning, and the growth of the industry. In referring to her work in the county, among the women living in rural districts, she told of the objective, to have the highest type home the farm will support and to aid the family to reach the highest level economically, physically, socially, mentally and spiritually. The groups are divided into community associations, home economics extension clubs, young peoples associations and 4-H clubs. The programs deal with food, home management, clothing, yard improvement and child development. For recreation they have games, dramatics and music, and the county now has a county chorus, as well as club individual male quartets, women's quartets and mixed quartets.

REPUDIATION OF CHIANG KAI-SHEK IS MADE STRONG

Japanese Instruct Ambassador To Return From China

TOKYO, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The Japanese government today instructed its ambassador to China to return home and reiterated its determination to have no further dealings with the Chinese government of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

This repudiation, explained Akira Kazami, chief secretary of the cabinet, was stronger than a declaration of war. A declaration of war would mean recognition of Chiang Kai-Shek's regime as the government of China, he said. But Japan today considers it only a local regime.

Indications strengthened that Tokyo eventually would recognize the Peiping regime, created under protection of the Japanese army, as the government of China.

Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye expressed belief that regime "certainly would become the mainstay" of the new China Japanese expect to come into being after resistance to Japan is crushed.

Official circles said the recall of Ambassador Shigeru Kawagoe from Shanghai was tantamount to withdrawal of recognition from the Chiang Kai-Shek regime but emphasized that Japan's repudiation of the former Nanking government already had been made clear in the government's statement of Sunday.

Embassy Not Closed

Japan's embassy in China, however, will not be closed. Shinroku Hidaka, its counselor, will remain in Shanghai as charge d'affaires.

Domei, the Japanese news agency, said the Chinese ambassador to Tokyo, Hsu Shih-Ying, would sail for China Jan. 20, but that a counselor would remain in charge of the Chinese embassy here.

Premier Konoye, in an interview with the Japanese press, said the Japanese government expected and was determined that the Peiping regime would grow and cooperate with Japan for "peace and culture in the orient." But he admitted it must undergo some changes before becoming the government of all China.

(Elderly Chinese of Japanese selection compose the "provisional government of China" established recently at Peiping, renamed Peking, claiming to have inherited all powers of the Peking government which ruled China before the Nationalists established their regime at Nanking in 1928).

The premier said the Peiping regime might undergo a development similar to that of Manchukou.

Kazami said Japan intends to "continue a crusade against the anti-Japanese regime, for the sake of peace in the Far East."

Japanese On Defensive

SHANGHAI, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Chinese counter-thrusts put Japanese armies on the defensive today in two important zones of their widespread warfare, along the Tientsin-Pukow railway north of Nanking and in the Hangchow area, 125 miles southwest of Shanghai. Japanese sources admitted they had been forced into defensive positions in those areas.

Heavy fighting was in progress in the Hangchow area, where Japanese apparently had been balked in their attempt to drive inland from the seaport.

Golden Glover amateur boxers working to enter the Sedalia Democrat-Capital district tournament to be held the last of the month will meet outside competition Thursday night, January 20, when the Columbia Golden Glovers will invade the Sedalia district. Eight boxers under the management of Jack Crangle of Columbia, manager of the American Legion Golden Glove tournament of Columbia district, will be on the Sedalia card.

Joe Ordway local coach and trainer, this noon received word from Crangle he has six boxers ready to meet Sedalians and expects to have two colored boxers for Sedalia colored boys, however, he assured Ordway there would be eight Columbians ready for the card.

The interest in the Golden Gloves among the young boxers of the Sedalia district has increased so that there are now more than forty white amateur boxers preparing themselves to fight in the tournament. Several of these boys are being matched locally to give them experience.

Van Dyke Speaks

Mr. Van Dyke responded by pronouncing his associations here as most pleasant. He said that Sedalia was a democratic community and that he enjoyed his association with the Rotary and high school faculty. He paid tribute to the school system and particularly to the superintendent, Mr. Hunt.

His response was followed by two vocal numbers by Frank Gross, Jr., a senior at the high school. He was accompanied by Mrs. A. R. Beach.

Dr. J. E. Cannaday then spoke on the two awards which the Rotary will make this year to a high school boy and girl. The cash award of $10 each will be given to the high school boy and girl whose record at Smith-Cotton is judged highest by the faculty. Dr. Cannaday followed his address with several reels of motion pictures.

Guy Peabody, chairman of the program, committee announced that next Monday's meeting will be given by the Boys Work Committee under the direction of Dr. L. S. Geiger.

The program committee which arranged Monday night's program was composed of Guy Peabody, chairman, F. G. Buchanan, L. A. Van Dyke, William Hurlbut and Dr. L. S. Geiger.

FINALLY REPORT MRS. RUBENS IS UNDER ARREST

Being Held In Moscow Suspected In Espionage Plot

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The Soviet foreign office informed the United States government today that Mrs. Ruth Marie Rubens was under arrest in Moscow and undergoing questioning in connection with suspected espionage.

The woman, an American citizen, has been the subject of an investigation by the state department since she disappeared mysteriously in Moscow last month.

In an oral reply to an American note of January 7 requesting information as to Mrs. Rubens' whereabouts, the Soviet foreign office informed Loy Henderson charge d'affaires in Moscow that the woman was arrested following the arrest of the man with whom she entered the Soviet Union under the name of "Mr. and Mrs. Donald L. Robinson."

"Robinson," the foreign office said it was informed by the Soviet secret police, was arrested at Sverdlovsk on suspicion of espionage.

It added that while the investigation has not progressed sufficiently to warrant placing a formal charge of that nature against Mrs. Rubens, the examination of her by the authorities is being continued.

Immediately on receipt of this information Secretary Hull dispatched instructions to the embassy at Moscow to request the Soviet government's permission to interview Mrs. Rubens.

The case has presented a bizarre passport mystery since the disappearance of the "Robinsons" in Moscow in November precipitated an investigation which disclosed that they had obtained their American passports in the names of persons dead for many years.

Efforts to identify the couple led investigators to establish that "Mrs. Robinson" actually is an American citizen whose real name is Mrs. Rubens.

How she came to be traveling on the passport issued in the names of "Mrs. Robinson" is a detail not yet cleared up. Neither have American authorities been able to establish the identity and nationality of "Robinson."

ACT UNDER WATER

By an ingenious system of indirect lighting, technicians at the Samuel Goldwyn Studios perfected a process for photographing action played under water for use in certain scenes of "The Hurricane," the South Sea Island drama, currently at the Liberty Theatre.

Dorothy Lamour and Jon Hall, who play the native heroine and hero of the film, are shown swimming under water. Their actual progress beneath the surface is clearly shown.

Dorothy Lamour in "The Hurricane"

These under-water scenes were filmed in a specially constructed tank, so built as to comprise a rock-bordered section of a South Sea lagoon. Sides and rock bottom of the tank are a brilliant light-reflecting white and the water was treated with a special clarifying process.

As a result, artfully placed lights, some of them anchored below the water's surface, provided sufficient illumination for clear cinematographing of the swimmers. Cinematographer Bert Glennon also devised effects which capture the shimmer and ripple of the water.

Once holder of the swimming and diving championships of Tahiti, Hall found the under water action easy and to his liking.

FEAR OVER SCORE DIED IN FIRE AT A BOYS' SCHOOL

for shelter in below-zero weather after escaping, virtually all in scant night clothing, through windows and down crowded fire escapes.

The fire's origin was not determined.

Apparently it had been burning at least 30 minutes when a passerby saw the flames.

The occupants were warned immediately and an alarm spread.

As the thinly-clad students and teachers streamed from the burning building firemen and townsfolk gave what aid they could. Many lent overcoats and blankets.

The flames swept quickly through the wooden interior of the institution and blazed high through the roof, which collapsed and weakened the dormitory floor.

No survivor was able to say whether anyone was trapped on the dormitory floor when the roof collapsed.

Successively one floor after another, from the top down, followed the roof in collapse.

A few hours after the fire's discovery, the roof and four floors were but a heap of burning wreckage on the basement floor.

Difficult To Extinguish

At noon firemen still were pouring water from 15 hose lines into the blazing wreckage, but made little progress in extinguishing it. They had not been able to get into the building to begin the search for bodies and said "it might be hours" before they could.

In the hospital, near the school, boys huddled three and four in a room as doctors went Seized September 25. The abduction of Ross Sept. 25 had appeared fated, until Anders' surprise arrest, go down in history surrounded by the mystery of another Ross kidnapping—Brewster Ross in 1874. The boy was never seen again.

A retired manufacturer of greeting cards and valentines, Ross was forced from his automobile on a lonely Illinois prairie, while his former secretary, Miss Florence Freihage, pleaded with his assailants that the 72-year-old man's health was poor and they would endanger his life.

Ross and Miss Freihage were returning to Chicago from nearby Sycamore, where they had dined, when gunmen blocked their way and seized the wealthy victim.

"Do you think this guy is worth $250,000?" Miss Freihage said one of the gunmen asked her as another took $85 from her purse and forced her to lie down on the car seat.

While fears mounted for Ross' welfare, a $50,000 ransom demand was met Oct. 8 but failed to win his release.

The victim's wife issued a statement Oct. 19 admitting the abductors had worked a "double-cross" and hinted a belief he was already dead.

She said law enforcement agencies had cooperated in allowing the negotiations to go along unmolested until that time, but a widespread search would begin immediately.

The first ransom bill—a $10 was discovered Oct. 21 in Chicago by a clerk in the Rock Island Railroad freight offices.

Periodically, new "hot money" was found as federal agents stepped up the pace of the manhunt.

Widow Grief-Stricken. CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(P)—Grief-stricken and broken in health, Mrs. Charles S. Ross remained secluded in her apartment today and declined comment on an announcement that the kidnapping and slaying of her aged husband had been solved.

The grim vigil she maintained for word of her husband's fate was broken last night, 114 days after his disappearance.

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the federal bureau of investigation, announced at Los Angeles that Peter Anders had confessed kidnapping Ross. The FBI chief also said Anders confessed slaying an associate, James Atwood Gray.

Mrs. Ross made only one public statement since Sept. 25, the date of the kidnapping. That was a futile appeal on Oct. 17 to the kidnappers to release her husband, retired manufacturer.

Anders and Gray were strangers to Chicago police investigators. They said the pair had no records here.

Two Cases Unsolved

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(P)—The arrest in California of Peter Anders on charges of kidnapping and slaying Charles S. Ross, of Chicago leaves only two federal kidnapping cases unsolved.

Justice department files disclosed that G-Men have had jurisdiction in 114 kidnapping cases since the passage of the so-called Lindbergh law in 1932.

Of these only the kidnapping-slaying of little Charles Mattson and the strange disappearance of Arthur Freid remain unsolved, officials said.

Another head-lined crime in 1937 was the disappearance of Mrs. Alice Parsons from her home in Stony Brook, L. I., home June 9. Federal agents withdrew after a preliminary investigation, indicating they had found no clear evidence of abduction.

ENTHUSIASTS ON WILDLIFE MEET AT THE CAPITOL

wildlife and other natural resources," he declared.

The "vast army of conservationists" must make its demands for protection of wildlife and for adequate funds to support a conservation known, Darling said.

"Vast expenditures of public funds are made by the federal government but not for conservation projects," he stated. "Congress never hears from the 11,000,000 sportsmen and 36,000 clubs about the needs of wildlife conservation. Consequently, the biological survey, U. S. Bureau of Fisheries and State Conservation agencies * * * are half-starved for lack of means."

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 18.—More than 400 sportsmen and wildlife enthusiasts crowded into the house of representatives chamber at the capitol here today for the first state-wide meeting of the conservation federation of Missouri.

Governor Lloyd C. Stark told the federation that the first six months' experience under the new state conservation law had revealed "difficulties" but that success of the program was assured because "there is an overwhelming sentiment among the people of Missouri in favor" of it.

"The difficulties are largely technical," Stark said. "They are the result of a necessary and complete reorganization of the old game and fish department. . . into a much greater, more comprehensive and wider-reaching conservation department, with broader powers and greater responsibilities in every way."

The conservation commission members were lauded by the executive as "pioneers" who must "clear away the brush in the path of progress" and "see that the program is carried out honestly, fearlessly and in fairness to all."

Praise For I. T. Bode

The governor also had words of praise for Irwin T. Bode, new director for the commission, asserting:

"I want to say right here that I consider him the ideal man for director of conservation and I know the commission intends to hold him on the job until the results which he has promised us are realized."

The statement was viewed as significant in view of the ouster suit filed against Bode in the supreme court on the ground he had not been a resident of Missouri for a year when named to the post. He came here from the bureau of biological survey in Washington and was formerly conservation director in Iowa.

J. N. (Ding) Darling, Des Moines, Iowa, widely known as a cartoonist and as a conservationist, was to address the federation later today.

Sedaliens on Committee. William F. Fahey, St. Louis, was elected permanent chairman for the meeting. He named the following committee chairman: Former State Senator Nick T. Cave, Columbia, permanent organization; former State Senator Lon S. Haymes, Springfield, resolutions; and W. B. Harris, Fulton, credentials.

J. T. Montgomery and W. P. Stanley of Sedalia were appointed members of the committee on permanent organization.

The members met by senatorial districts during the luncheon recess to select nominees for directorships. There will be 34 directors, one from each senatorial district.

WALLACE BELIEVES RATE HIKE BE DETRIMENTAL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(P)—Secretary Wallace told the interstate commerce commission today that freight rate increases now being sought by American railroads would "tend to intensify the current recession."

The administration's agricultural spokesmen suggested railroads actually should reduce their rates, which he declared to be among the factors "hindering, rather than helping, a recovery in industrial activity."

Wallace testified on an application of the nation's rail carriers for a 15 per cent raise in rates on virtually all commodities, including agricultural products.

Hearing For February 7. The hearing on charges preferred by a committee of the Missouri Bar Association against Fred A. Benz, Sedalia attorney, will be held before Judge Dimmitt Hoffman in the circuit court Monday, February 7.

BIG FLYING BOATS IN MASS OCEAN HOP

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Jan. 18.—Eighteen big flying boats, units of the bombing patrol of the United States fleet, headed across the Pacific toward Honolulu today in the greatest massed ocean flight ever undertaken by the navy.

After all were in the air they met in a rendezvous 100 miles at sea, for formation flight to Pearl Harbor, 2,570 miles away.

The flight to Honolulu was expected to require 19 to 20 hours.

Two of the first group of nine were unable to get off the water on their initial run across the bay but made it on the second attempt.

Several hundred spectators, including families of the fliers, watched the takeoffs.

The bombers, each carrying a crew of seven officers and men, are the first of 42 the navy has announced will be flown to Hawaii this year. A group of 12 units will make the flight in July or August and the remaining dozen will follow around Thanksgiving.

Today's takeoffs marked the start of the navy's sixth long distance flight from here within the past year.

A 24-plane flight made 1,200 miles to Seattle; there were two 12-plane flights to Hawaii, one 12-plane hop 3,080 miles to Coco Solo, C. Z., followed by another December 8 involving 14 bombers, then the greatest long distance mass transfer of aircraft.

The planes, under Lieut. Commanders S. H. Warner and W. G. Tomlinson, will follow the great circle course from Point Loma to Diamond Head, near Honolulu. They face spotty but otherwise favorable weather.

In the eighth grade: Doris Boone, Bobby Cain, Janice Hubbard, William Slagle, Richard Wade, Vera Martin, and Betty McClain.

In some of the classes, particularly the freshman, the majority of the votes were uncertain and the president was not determined. These classes will hold another election in the next several days at the high school.

NEW PLEDGES FOR THE RELIEF FUND

Through an error in the publication of Monday's announcement of Pettis County Relief Fund campaign results to date, in which the achievements of various groups of workers were reported, the amount raised by teams in the Sedalia business district was omitted. This was $2,148.55, including a number of subscriptions received directly at the campaign offices.

Since then new pledges and payments turned in up to noon on Tuesday have raised the totals somewhat. A $20 subscription from William Bertman brings the figure for the downtown business district up to $24,168.55; while contributions of $1 from Ellis Smith increase the total raised by the Negro Welfare Council to $121.36.

Latest relief fund totals, as announced at noon on Tuesday by Rabbi S. H. Baron, retiring campaign director, are as follows: Total subscriptions, $18,708.53; total payments, $7,351.30; balance payable, $11,357.23.

Pittsburgh Pirates Stars Begin 'Popping Off' for Current Season

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Those merry Pittsburgh Pirates of spring baseball fame have forced Football Coach Jock Sutherland and his anti-Rose bowl team right off the front pages of the local newspapers.

Since the Pitt footballers wrapped their togs in moth balls, the Pirates have kept the citizenry agog by some right smart long-distance harpooning that promises to result in as much good for the ball club as a national league pennant. And it may even bring just that.

Club President Bill Benswanger, who confesses there are quite a few baseball men who know more about the game than he does, opened the barrage by announcing what the Pirates needed was new faces, that the Pirate management was ready to swap "star for star" with any club.

Between mashie shots on his favorite golf course in Florida, Paul Waner read this pronouncement. "What he means," retorted the "big poison" man, "is that he wants cheaper faces."

Naturally, a pop-off like that from big Paul didn't look so good for Bill Benswanger but Bill took it in Sweet William fashion by saying: "Paul is wrong, but he's a great ball player. I guess a great ball player should be able to pop off."

Then came Forrest (Woody) Jensen, the outfielder, and it was different. Woody was quoted in Wichita as saying the Pirate management was "cheap" and that Manager Pie Traynor catches whatever trouble there is on the club. Benswanger, Traynor and quite a few Pirate fans blew up over that. Jensen insisted he was misquoted but the reporter likewise insisted Jensen had read the story before it was published and that he (the reporter) had suggested the ball player take some of the "fast hop" off the bismiling statement.

Traynor, regarded around the National League as a milk toast type of guy, burned up when he read Jensen's blast.

"I can understand a star player popping off and attracting so much public notice," boomed Pie, "but a .276 hitter like Jensen getting the headlines is something that amazes me."

Jensen then issued another statement saying he believed the front office should give the regulars more attention.

"I think if the business office would forget about inconsequential rules, treat present members as if they had the ability to win and back us for nothing less than first place," said Jensen, "we would hand that world series back to Pittsburghers."

To all this, plus a recent crack by Waite Hoyt that the Pirates were just a lazy bunch of high-paid loafers, Benswanger has cocked an attentive ear.

DI MAGGIO LOOKS FOR SALARY HIKE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Joe Dimaggio, who without proclaiming himself a holdout, has started more discussion over his 1938 salary than any other major league ball player, is back in the big town to be stuffed at banquets and to dicker with the New York Yankees.

Dimaggio, recently voted the "player of the year" by New York baseball writers, said he thought he was "entitled to a substantial increase" in salary but vigorously denied reports that he already had come to terms with the Yankees.

"While I naturally have an idea what I'm worth," said Joe when he arrived from the coast yesterday, "I don't think it's up to me to say anything about that now. I'd rather wait until the club has made its offer."

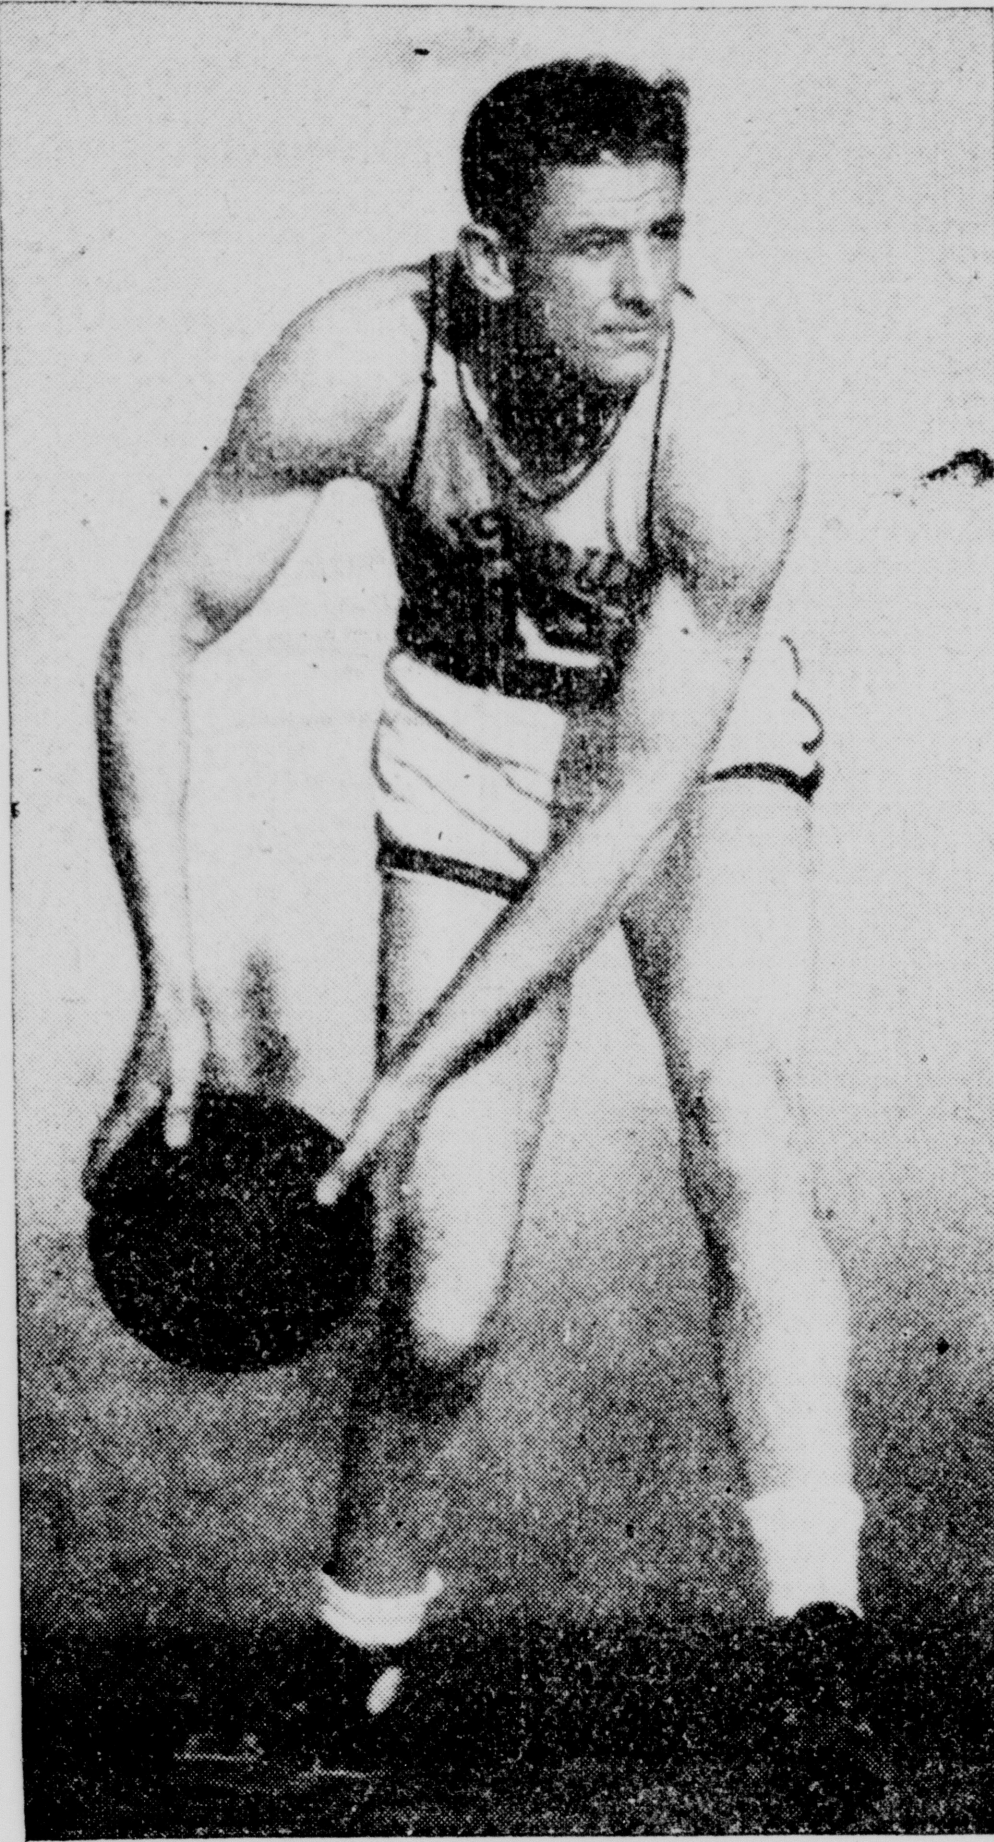

"I understand they are sending the contracts out this week and I hope they don't send mine all the way to San Francisco. Because if they would ask me over to see them, I'd go at once and maybe settle the whole business without further delay."

"I have signed no contract up to now, haven't even seen one, and have no idea what the Yankees intend to offer me."

Joe's principal business in the east is to attend the dinners given by the baseball writers at Philadelphia, Jan. 25, and here, Jan. 30. He will receive a plaque emblematic of his selection by the New York writers at the banquet here.

Dimaggio declined to name any specific salary he would ask. As a second-year man with the Yanks last season, and a phenom-

WINTER SUNSHINE NEEDED BY LAYERS

Improving Hatchability of Eggs Is Important.

By H. M. Scott, Associate in Poultry Husbandry, University of Illinois, WNU Service.

During winter laying flocks need all the sunshine they can get. Of course the flock must be protected from chill and extreme cold, but the practice of closing the hen house door early and locking it until after Easter, as many poultrymen do, reduces the hatchability of eggs laid during this period.

The first recommendation for the improvement of hatchability is the greater use of free sunshine and green feed. It is estimated that poultrymen and hatcherymen of the United States take an annual loss of more than $14,000,000 from eggs that fail to hatch.

In experiments conducted at the National Agricultural Research center in Beltsville, Md., where the breeding flock was allowed outdoors in the winter sunshine, the hatchability of their fertile eggs increased 14 per cent. This increase was shown despite the fact that the hens had previously received a diet containing 2 per cent cod liver oil.

Where it is necessary to confine the flock because of extreme weather, cod liver oil is recognized as essential in securing good hatching eggs.

Poultrymen who cannot obtain succulent green feed in the winter may use good grade alfalfa hay and milk products. No winter ration for confined breeding flocks should contain less than 5 per cent of dried milk products or its equivalent in semi-solid or liquid form, unless a meat meal is used and is known to contain enough of dried or whole liver to make up at least 2 per cent of the total ration.

Alfalfa, milk and liver meal are potent sources of vitamin G. This vitamin is necessary for good hatchability.

RUNNING WATER IN HOME FROM LAYERS

By H. H. Alp, Poultry Extension Specialist, University of Illinois, WNU Service.

A flock of 200 hens, properly managed and cared for, would in one year's time just about pay for the complete installation of a sink, running water and bathroom in a farm home.

Installation of a sink, running water and a bathroom would add to the comfort of many farm homes, and the effort and expense could be justified by the added protection afforded the health of the farm family.

Poultry records show that the approximate profit from a 200-hen flock amounts to $256. This amount represents about two-thirds of the total cost of a simple pressure water system installation, with the necessary fixtures for kitchen and bathroom.

A persistent determination to use poultry as a means to meet such an objective often has more to do with the success of a poultry enterprise than the flock owner's love for poultry.

Acquiring a flock of birds with the inherent ability to lay well during the winter months has a favorable effect on poultry cash income and the realization of the flock owner's objective.

In acquiring such a flock it is helpful to mark those birds that start laying early, especially if they are of good type, size and of apparent good health.

A hen so marked might eventually disappoint the flock owner, but if she is still laying when he selects breeders, the band will be

FATHER AND SON DIE IN CHAIR FOR A TORCH MURDER

Frank and Anthony Di Stasio Executed With Prayers on Lips

By The Associated Press
BOSTON, Jan. 18 — Praying with a fervor more in keeping with a Sunday church service than with a brilliantly lighted death chamber, Frank and Anthony Di Stasio, father and son, died in the electric chair at the state prison early today for the "torch murder" of Daniel Crowley, a Boston laborer.

It was Massachusetts' first father-son execution on record. Anthony, 24, shuffled into the chamber a few minutes after midnight, only an hour and a half after Governor Charles F. Hurley rejected the final plea of his counsel that his life be spared.

Walking backward ahead of him was Rev. Ralph W. Farrell, prison chaplain. The priest intoned "the prayer for the last agony." Eyes glued on the chaplain's face, Anthony repeated the prayers.

At the chair, he said, simply: "Goodbye, father." Whether he meant the priest or his father, still in a death house cell only a few feet away, was not certain.

He was praying when he died. The father, head bowed but eyes fastened on the priest, seemed to waver as he was led into the chamber, but he rallied quickly.

Farewell To Son
"Goodbye, son. It's tough. But I'll see you again," he said as he was about to be placed in the chair.

And then, in a voice that echoed through the stillness of the little room, he repeated, after the priest, "the Hail Mary." He was dead a moment later.

The arrest of the former Revere candymaker and his son came two days after a body, tentatively identified as that of the father, was found in the latter's burned automobile in suburban Hudson on May 6, 1935. The man apparently was the victim of an automobile accident, but a medical examiner found he had been clubbed and set on fire "while still conscious." A policeman who knew the elder Di Stasio informed superiors the body could not be his because Di Stasio had not suffered a broken hip, as had the victim.

This started a search for the father and son. They were seized quickly. Meanwhile surgeons who had mended Crowley's broken hip identified the body as his. The two Di Stasios were charged with murdering Crowley in an effort to collect $20,000 in life insurance carried on the father's life. Anthony was freed as a principal but was convicted as an accessory before the fact. The father was convicted of the murder. Both convictions carried the mandatory death sentence.

Crowley, unemployed, and a stranger to the two slayers, the state contended had been "picked up" in Boston, plied with liquor, and driven to Hudson.

SIX SLAIN IN A FAMILY FEUD

DURAND, Wis., Jan. 18.—(P)—A nine months' quarrel between two brothers over burning a barn culminated in the slaying last night of six persons, four of them children under 10 years of age. Two others were seriously wounded.

Sheriff Victor Seline, of Pepin county, said Lawrence Leflay, 37,

They Bridged Two States

Govs. George H. Earle (left) of Pennsylvania, and Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, are pictured at Easton, Pa., as they dedicated the new bridge which joins Phillipsburg, N. J., and Easton. The span is an important link in one of the country's busiest transcontinental highways. (Central Press)

committed suicide after shooting to death his wife, about 36, their daughters: Virgie 8, and Beulah 7; their niece, Phyllis 8 and his nephew, Virgil 5.

Leflay's brother, Marvin, 35, was wounded and the latter's wife was killed by a blow. Her son, Roger 4, escaped.

After attacking his brother and sister-in-law, Lawrence took their two children to his nearby home. There he ordered his wife, daughters and the two other children to a bedroom and commanded the children to lie in bed, the sheriff said. The children were shot through the chests, Mrs. Leflay in the head.

Sheriff Seline said Lawrence had accused his brother of setting fire to the barn, and that the old quarrel was resumed while they were doing chores last night on the farm they jointly tenanted.

RABBI BARON A GUEST SPEAKER AT TOPEKA, KAS.

Rabbi Samuel Halevi Baron returned Monday from Topeka, Kansas, where he was a guest speaker on Sunday. He delivered the principal address at a Neighborhood Discussion Meeting, attended by a large number of Topekan and visiting Kansans, at Temple Beth Shalom. The program was arranged by Rabbi Philip Finkelstein of Cincinnati, regional rabbi for the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, who was in charge of a similar meeting at Temple Beth El in Sedalia a month ago. At that time the guest speaker here was Rabbi Samuel W. Chomsky, of the Topeka congregation.

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 18.—(P)—In a proclamation designating Feb. 2 as national social hygiene day, health authorities and voluntary agencies were called upon by Governor Lloyd C. Stark to bring citizens together to consider and adopt practical measures for a campaign against social diseases.

"Community knowledge and action are indispensable weapons in this campaign" . . . to create "wholesome community conditions and to curb the ravages of syphilis," the governor said.

INSTRUCTIONS SENT ON PEST CONTROL

COLUMBIA, Mo., Jan. 18.—(P) Approximately 1300 township members of the State Farmers' Insect Pest Control Council have been sent instructions for local control, the Missouri College of Agriculture announced.

The township members were asked to contact farmers in their territory and compile reports on the abundance of grasshoppers and the crop acreage needed to be baited with poison.

The reports will form the basis on which county committees will estimate the needs of their counties. The county committees will be selected by township leaders.

Be Careful About Children's Colds

TREAT THEM
PROVED WAY

More mothers use VapoRub than any other medication of its kind—they have proved it by use in their own homes. It was further proved in the world's largest cold-clinic. No "dosing" — just massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. Almost at once, its poultice-and-vapor action starts to loosen phlegm, relieve irritation and coughing, help break local congestion. Of-ten, by morning the worst of the cold is over.
